GEORGE ARTHUR GRAY

HOWARD ATHERTON CUTLER

Class Secretary

EDWARD KENNARD RAND

To the Class of 1894:

It is the Secretary's sad duty, in offering to the Class this third report, to announce the deaths of the following men, which occurred since the publication of the last report: Arthur Appleton Beebe, Leander Coolidge, John Francis Crosby, Aaron Benedict Keeler, William Frazer Lee, Marshall Newell, Roscoe Addison Small, John Reed Whipple. The short biographies of these men have in most cases been written by the classmates who knew them best. To the account of Newell, whose death is the greatest loss that has yet befallen the class, may be added Sharp's notice in the present report (p. 99), as well as the little volume entitled "Marshall Newell, a Memorial for his Classmates and Friends," privately printed, Lamson, Wolffe and Co., Boston, 1898.* Besides various short notices of Newell, this memorial includes selections from his diary, made by Mr. C. T. Copeland.

The following list comprises men whose addresses are uncertain, and about which the Secretary would welcome further information; in almost all cases, his circulars to these men have been returned from the dead letter office: Gilbert Allis, Albert Scott Ames, William Braithwaite Clymer, Frederick Woodburn Cobb, Morris William Croll, Owen Gould Davis, James Biddle Eustis, Jr., John Sören Festerson, Jesse Lenhart Frazeur, George Byron Gordon, Hugh Hastings Henry, Arthur Babson Horton, Joseph Henry Poett Howard, Charles Orlando Jenkins, Hugh Means, Frank Howard Ransom, Jr., Thomas Richardson, John Rideout, Joseph Frailey Smith, Henry Garettson Spooner, Harry Winslow Thayer, Philip Burton Thompson, Percy Rivington Turnure, Edward Neville Vose, Henry Davis Weed, Hervey White.

The Secretary does not intend hereafter to send continued appeals to those members of the class who do not intend to answer them. By the time that enough has been contributed to make a report, the notices of those who answered the first circulars have become antiquated. In the future the Secretary will publish as much as is sent him immediately, in response to his circular, and thus give the class a report which, however incomplete, is at least up to date.

Attention is called to the report of the Class Committee on page 188. It will be seen that a large number of men have failed to pay the subscriptions pledged, and have thus brought the finances of the class into a most critical condition. The Secretary joins the Committee in their appeal to those who are still in arrears, and hopes that the latter will realize the necessity of keeping the Class Fund intact.

*The book is now on sale at Damrell and Upham's, 283 Washington St., Boston: bound in paper, $1.00; in leather, $2.00.

In conclusion, the Secretary would say that this report should be dedicated to his wife, if it were not more appropriate, perhaps, for his wife to dedicate it to him. Certainly, if it had not been for her labors, the publication of this volume would have been delayed even beyond the present time. The Secretary wishes also to thank the members of the class who have furnished him with information about themselves and others, and hopes that he may be of service in answering inquiries about '94 men. Special acknowledgment is due to Waters, who procured the negative for the portrait of Marshall Newell, and assisted the Secretary in other ways. Corrections or suggestions relative to the present report will be welcomed.

EDWARD KENNARD RAND.

CLEVELAND ABBE, JR.

"During the summer vacation of 1897 I worked as field assistant on the Maryland Geological Survey. From October, 1897, to June, 1898, held Fellowship in Geology in Johns Hopkins University, from which place received Ph.D. in Geology on June 14, 1898. Thesis:— 'A General Report on the Physiography of Maryland,' published as Part 2, Volume 1, 1899, of new series of reports of the Maryland State Weather Service.

In May, 1898, I was appointed to a graduate Fellowship in the Teachers' College of Columbia University, N. Y., but resigned this in July to accept position of Professor of Geology and Biology in Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. During the summer was again a special assistant in Maryland Geological Survey, and in the fall reported for duty at Westminster, Md., as noted above.

In June, 1899, was called to South Carolina to conduct a Summer Class in Physiography at the State Summer Normal School at Rock Hill, S. C., and at close of session, in July, 1899, was elected Acting Professor of Natural Sciences in the Winthrop Normal and Industrial College of South Carolina. During July and August I worked on the Maryland Geological Survey, returning to South Carolina in September.

From September, 1899, to June, 1901, have had charge of work in Natural Sciences at the State Normal College at Rock Hill, S. C., incidentally preparing exhibit of Science Department for the Normal College exhibit at the State Fair held in Columbia, S. C., in November, 1900.

During the summer of 1900 was a special field assistant in the Hydrographic division of the United States Geological Survey, assisting in the hydrographic survey of the Southern Appalachians. In June, 1901, resigned position in Winthrop College and went abroad to study geology and geography in England, France and Germany.

Have published 'An Epoch in the Terrace Cutting of the Potomac River," Johns Hopkins Univ. Circ., 1897; 'A general report on the Physiography of Md.,' Md. State Weather Service, Vol. 1, Part 2, 1899; 'The Physiography of Allegany Co., Md.,' Md. Geol. Survey; Special report on Physical Features of Allegany Co., Md., 1900' ; 'The Physiography of Maryland' in Bulletin of Amer. Bur. Geog., Winona, Minn., Vol 1, 1900.

Life member of National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.; member of Geological Society of Washington, D. C.; Fellow (elected August, 1899) American Association for Advancement of Science; Life Fellow (elected August, 1899) Geological Society of America."

SEAVEY BATTELLE.

"In the fall of '94, after my summer vacation at Mattapoisett, on the shores of Buzzard's Bay, I began work in the Grinnell Mfg. Co., one of the largest mills in New Bedford, Mass., which make fine cotton goods. It was my intention to learn the cotton manufacturing business, and by starting at the bottom, to work my way up through the different departments.

I began by sampling cotton and doing odd jobs in the picker room. From here I went into the card room, where I spent four or five months, and was promoted to the position of second hand, when I had entire supervision of the card room, being responsible to the superintendent of this room, the "boss carder," so called. From the card room, I went through the spinning and weave rooms, working as a mill operative. My hours for work were 6.30 A. M. till 6 P. M., with an hour at noon for lunch. I worked in this mill till June, 1895, when I decided to leave, and spent the remainder of the summer at Mattapoisett. In the fall I went to New York City, and began work in the cotton goods department of the Dry Goods Commission house of Dudley, Battelle & Hurd. After two years in this business, I was taken into the firm as a junior partner. I am still with this concern, although the name has been changed to Battelle, Hurd & Co. I have lived in New York City since the fall of 1895, and have joined the following clubs: The Harvard Club, The Apawamis Golf Club.

at Rye, N. Y., The Staten Island Cricket and Base Ball Club, The Livingston Field Club, The Harbor Hill Golf Club, all at Staten Island. I am also a member of the New York Cavalry Troop, called 'Squadron A' "

GARDNER BEALS.

"Attorney at law, in the office of Tower, Talbot & Hiler, 27 State St., Boston."

RUSSELL BOWDITCH BEALS.

"Since my last report, I have become connected with Messrs. Winslow Bros., leather manufacturers. My business is to supply them with large quantities of sheep skins. I made my first trip for them in 1898, visiting London, Paris, Antwerp, Frankfort and Marseilles, whence I travelled by rail through southern Europe to Constantinople, stopping at the most important cities en route. After doing a bit of Turkey, I made a complete circuit of the eastern Mediterranean, visiting Asia Minor, the Archipelago, Syria, Egypt, Greece, and Macedonia, thence back to Constantinople, and thence to Russia through the Bosphorus and Black Sea, returning to western Europe by rail. After returning to Boston, I again started off, this time in a westerly direction. I travelled across the Pacific to New Zealand, in the company of Geo. Lamb, '01. I subsequently visited Australia, and returned to Boston via the Suez Canal and London. Since then, New Zealand has been my headquarters, and I have come out here across the Pacific each year, returning the same way. On Sept 5th, 1901, I was married to Miss Alice Warren Rice, at Norfolk, Va. We have just arrived in Christchurch, New Zealand, after travelling for three months through Canada, across the Pacific from Vancouver to Brisbane, Queensland, and through New South Wales and Victoria, seeing many interesting sights, including the famous race for the Melbourne Cup. I shall probably remain in this part of the world for two years. It is an extremely interesting country, and any '94 man with plenty of time to spare would do well to come out here and look me up."

CHARLES HARRIS BECKWITH.

"My occupation continues to be the general practice of law, at Springfield, Mass. August 3, 1898, I was married to Marie Louise Folson of Springfield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James C. Sharp, '94. I am chairman of the Board of License Commissioners of the City of Springfield."

ARTHUR APPLETON BEEBE. *1900

Arthur Appleton Beebe was born January 30, 1872, the son of J. Arthur and Emily A. Beebe of Boston, and died March 11, 1900, at the age of 28. He was educated at the Fay School and later at St. Mark's School, took his degree cum laude regularly with our class, and his M.D. (among the first ten of the class) at the Harvard Medical School in 1898, after which he served a term in the Massachusetts General Hospital, and at the time of his death was about to enter upon the practice of his profession in Boston.

Outside his college courses, in which he stood well, and his Medical School work, in which he took the deepest interest, Beebe was especially fond of sailing, and for several years his boat "Nobska" was champion of its class in Buzzard's Bay. His later vacations were largely devoted to cruising. Much of his leisure time was given to music, especially the piano, until press of other work no longer allowed it. Although never taking an active part in college athletics, Beebe was interested in all class and college organizations, and an enthusiastic follower of out-door sports. He was a man who preferred a few intimate friends to a wide general acquaintance, and those whom he knew best were almost all '94 men, not only during college, but up to the time of his death.

"I graduated from the Harvard Law School in June, 1898, and received from Harvard University, at the Commencement Exercises of that year, the degrees of L.L.B. and A.M. I was admitted to the bar of the State of Ohio in October, 1898, and since that time have been engaged in the practice of the law in Cincinnati. Since February, 1900, have been a member of the law firm of Maulinier, Bettman and Hunt. Am a member of various small social, literary and philanthropic clubs. My public, political activity has been restricted to a very exciting but unsuccessful campaign for membership of the Cincinnati Board of Education."

ELIAS BULLARD BISHOP.

"After graduating from the Harvard Law School in June, 1897, I was in the office of John Lowell, '77, until August, 1898, when George M. Cushing and I formed a partnership. We tossed up to determine who should be the senior partner, and Cushing won, so the firm name is Cushing and Bishop. We have not specialized in any branch of the law, but take what business we can get. I have two children, Robert Roberts Bishop, Second, born August 15, 1897, and Eleanor, born March 26th, 1900."

"Since the last class report in 1897, when I was with the Publishing house of Lamson, Wolfe & Co., Boston, I have been occupied in various ways. L., W. & Co. failed in the spring of 1899, and I was forced to look further for some occupation. After several months spent in seeing something of our eastern seaboard, I found work with the New England Electric Vehicle Transportation Co., of Boston, as their Purchasing Agent. From the autumn of '99 till February, 1901, I was busy enough to satisfy the most strenuous worker. In February of this year I was again forced to find some new occupation on account of the company's reducing their plant. J. H. Kidder, Harvard '92, kindly asked me to accompany him on a hunting trip to Alaska after big game, and I at once accepted the offer. We started the latter part of February, going directly to the Kodiak Islands, where we began hunting brown bear. After six weeks on the islands, we went to Cooke's Inlet, on the Alaskan Peninsular side, also after bear, and returned to Kodiac in July. During August, September and part of October, we were on the Kenai Peninsular, Cooke's Inlet, after mountain sheep and moose. I am glad to say we were successful in getting these three kinds of game. I have only just returned to Boston, and cannot say anything of my future movements. I am a member of the Union Club, the Union Boat Club, and the Mass. Military Historical Society of Boston and the Harvard Club of N. Y.

JOSEPH WILLIAM BLANKENSHIP.

After taking his Ph.D. at Harvard in '98, accepted the chair of Botany in Montana State College, Bozeman, Montana, and has since devoted his time, apart from teaching, to a biological and economic survey of that State, and to building up a good herbarium and botanical library at the institution with which he is connected, in order to have the means at his disposal for research work along the geological lines in which he is interested, and for which his situation in the heart of the Rockies, near the "parting of the ways," is particularly adapted. In June, 1900, formed a partnership, under the name of Williams & Bond, with George Weems Williams, with offices at 922 Equitable Building, Baltimore. I am not married, and expect to make no such change in my status. I am a member of the Maryland and New York Harvard Clubs, of the Baltimore Club, and of the Baltimore Country Club. In May, 1898, I was a member of the 5th Maryland Regiment, U. S. Vols. (Infantry), from May 14 to October 22nd, spent the summer at Tampa, Fla., and a large part of the succeeding fall at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, with typhoid fever. My rank as a soldier was first as a corporal, and finally as first sargeant of my company."

WILLIAM FREDERIC BOOS.

"Since the publication of the last report, I continued the study of Medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and received degree of M.D. in 1901. In 1900 I acted as assistant in the department of Hygiene, in 1901 I held the George Cheyne Shattuck Fellowship for original research in medical science. Early in the year, a paper on "The Chemistry of Digestion," which I read before the New England Association of Chemistry teachers, was published in their report. For four years was instructor in the evening High School, where I taught chemistry and physiology. I am a member of the Boylston Medical Society, and the Boston Society of Medical Sciences."

"My occupation since last Class Report has been farming."

ALBERT BOYDEN.

"My life since the date of the last Class Report has been somewhat uneventful. I practised law two years in Boston, hailing from the office of John Lowell, but early in the fall of this present year I formed a partnership with Edward C. Bradlee, another veteran of '94, and Howland Twombly, who after taking his college course as an 'Eli,' saw the error of his ways and entered the Harvard Law School, graduating in 1900. We are now situated at 60 State St., Boston. My political career has been confined to the City Government of Beverly, where I have been a member of the Common Council for two years."

EDWARD CHAMBERLIN BRADLEE.

"At the time of the last Class Report I was still with the Warren Chemical & Mfg. Co. of New York, and had charge of their Boston office. In the autumn of 1897, I left the Co. to go to the Harvard Law School, and graduated in the spring of 1900. From Sept. 1 1900 to Sept. 1, 1901 I was in the law office of Ropes, Gray & Gorham, at 60 State St., Boston. I am now practising law for myself, in the firm of Boyden, Bradlee & Twombly."

ALFRED HULSE BROOKS.

"Since 1897 I have been employed as Assistant Geologist by the U. S. Geological Survey. During 1897 and 1898 I was abroad for nine months on leave of absence, and attended the International Congress of Geologists at St. Petersburg, and later made an extensive trip through Russia, Turkey, Greece and France. In the spring of 1898 I was sent to Alaska, and made an exploration trip in the White and Tanana River basins, including a canoe journey of some 1400 miles. In 1899 I again went to Alaska on exploration work, this time exploring a strip of territory lying between Pyramid Harbor in southeastern Alaska and Eagle City on the Yukon, involving a journey of some 700 miles with pack train. In the fall of the same year I went to the then newly discovered gold fields of Nome, Alaska, and in coöperation with Mr. F. C. Schrader of the class of 1893, made a hasty examination of this district. Our results were embodied in a report published by the U. S. Geological Survey entitled A Preliminary Report on the Nome Gold Fields. Reports on the first two expeditions in Alaska have also been published by the U. S. Geological Survey. In 1900 I was detailed to make a geological survey of the western part of the Seward Peninsula, Alaska. The territory covered embraced some 5,000 or 6,000 square miles, and extended westward to Cape Prince of Wales. In this work I was assisted by Mr. G. B. Richardson of the class of 1895, and Arthur J. Collier, class of 1894. The territory lying immediately to the east of the region examined by us was studied geologically by Walter C. Mendenhall, also a student in the Lawrence Scientific School. Am now engaged in preparing a report on the work of the past season. During the coming summer I expect to make a reconnaissance of southeastern Alaska."

ALFRED MANSFIELD BROOKS.

"I spent the summer and autumn of 1897 travelling and studying in Italy, and returned to the University of Indiana in January of the following year, as instructor in Drawing and the History of Art, which position I had held since September, 1896. I passed the months of September, 1898 to April, 1899, as a member of the Harvard Graduate School in Cambridge, and returned to my work in Indiana University for the spring term of that same year. At the '99 commencement I received the degree of M.A. in Architecture (Harvard), and in the autumn following I was made Assistant Professor of the History of Art in Indiana University, which position I now hold. I have lectured upon Architecture, Painting and Engraving, in different cities,—St. Paul and Indianapolis,—and I have done some illustrating, besides publishing articles from time to time in various educational magazines and journals, and recently those chapters of the 'University Lessons on the Fine Arts,' which relate to Greek, Roman, Romanesque and Gothic Architecture in the works now appearing under the editorship of Prof. Hoppin of Yale and Mr. Churchill of Columbia."

"After graduation I came to Kenilworth, as instructor in mathematics in Rugby School. The following year I became one of its principals, and have since that time held the position of principal. Four years ago, Girton School, a boarding and day school for girls, was established at Winnetka, of which I am principal, while nominally still holding my place in Rugby School."

LEANDER COOLIDGE. *1899.

Leander Coolidge was born in Natick, Mass., July 21, 1870. He was the son of William L. and Sarah I. Coolidge. Entering Harvard in 1890, he was graduated with the class of '94. The following September he went to Union Theological Seminary, New York, where he studied one year. The next year he was at the Yale Divinity School, where he was licensed to preach in June, 1896. He spent his vacation that summer in Hemingford, Neb., where he was in charge of a Congregational church. After three months of this experience, he returned in the fall to New Haven, to complete his theological course. In December, however, ill-health, which he had been combating from boyhood, obliged him to give up his work; and then began the grim struggle to get the better of that dread disease—consumption—that had unmistakably fastened itself upon him; but to no avail. He died at the Loomis Sanitarium, Liberty, N. Y., January 29, 1899.

If prominence were the test of worth, comparatively little, perhaps, could be written of Leander Coolidge. But if faithfulness and reliability are the tests, why then a great deal can be said of him. In college, he was a thorough Harvard man. Though, as I have said, he was not especially well known, he was, nevertheless, concerned in all that makes up the better college life. He was loyal to all the college traditions and institutions. Athletics, the various college publications, or anything else that could legitimately claim the support of a Harvard man, were liberally sustained by him. As a scholar, his rank was high. Ill-health forbade him to indulge his ambitions in this direction, to their full extent. Nevertheless such was the keenness of his mind, and such were his habits of concentration in study, he easily mastered any subject that he attempted.

It is with especial satisfaction that one thinks of him in connection with the work of the ministry. For Coolidge had just the qualities to win the respect and confidence of men. He was a thoroughly manly fellow. Tolerant, he was yet a man of convictions. Positive in the expression of his thoughts, yet he was not at all narrow. He could be patient and sympathetic with almost everything except impurity, meanness, and hypocrisy. The Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man was his platform; and, with him, it was no meaningless or vague idea. Had he been permitted to carry on his work, the Christian ministry would have been greatly strengthened by this one who knew how to combine breadth with earnestness, and a love of men, with a hatred of their weakness and sin.

ARTHUR FORTUNATUS COSBY.

Cosby was practising law in the City of New York when the Cuban War began. He was a member of Squadron A, N. Y. National Guard, and tried to go with troop A, of that organization to the front, but was not successful. He then went to San Antonio, Texas, where he was mustered in the 1st U. S. Vol. Cavalry, commonly called "Rough Riders," as a private, on May 27th, 1898. He was assigned to troop K, which was one of the troops composing the two squadrons of the Rough Riders that sailed from Tampa in Gen. Shafter's expedition to Santiago de Cuba. He was in the engagement at La Guasimas, on June 24th, 1898, and also in the fight of July 1st, 1898, at Santiago. While charging with his troop up the hill at San Juan Heights, he was wounded, a Mauser bullet going through his hat rim, grazing his right cheek near the temple, passing through the right band in three places and entering the right chest, where it is still lodged. He walked back to his regimental hospital, and the next day walked to Siboney, a distance of 12 miles, where he secured transportation home.

On the recommendation of Col. Roosevelt for "showing gallantry and efficiency in all the fighting," he was promoted to Assistant Adj. Gen., with the rank of Captain of Vols. He was mustered out of the Rough Riders, August 14, 1898, and accepted his commission August 15, 1898. In September he was ordered to duty with the 2nd Army Corps, at Camp Meade, Pa., where he was temporarily attached to the staff of Maj. Gen. Graham, Commanding. Later with permanent duty with the 2nd Brigade, 1st Division there. He served there and at Summerville, S. C., until the spring of '99, when he resigned, and resumed the practice of law in New York City. He opened an office at No. 62 William St., and was soon made a Deputy Attorney General of the State, to aid in the prosecution of the District Attorney of N. Y., Asa Bird Gardner.

He was an active Republican in the campaign of 1900, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Union of New York City. In the municipal campaign of New York, 1901, was a member of the executive committee of the Citizens' Union, and chairman of their committee on Press and Literature, and as such took an active part in the campaign. When the new administration came into office, was appointed Assistant Corporation Counsel, by the Hon. George L. Rives, Corporation Counsel of this city, and was placed in charge of the Bureau for the Recovery of Penalties, with offices at 119 Nassau Street.

October 16, 1901, married at East Aurora, N. Y., to Marie Livingstone Robertson. October, 1901 to January, 1901, botanical investigations in England and France, for Bureau Plant Industry. Publications: a few articles in botanical magazines."

"I have been during the last three years, Professor of Latin in the University of Oregon. I was first elected Associate Professor in Latin, but my Senior Professor died before I assumed duties here, so that I was almost immediately advanced to full Professorship. The University of Oregon is my old Alma Mater. Mrs. Dunn and I went to attend Harvard Class Day and Commencement, in June, '99, staying nearly the whole summer in Cambridge, where I did some special work in the libraries. If I had thought that the triennial meet of our class fell on the following year, I believe I should have postponed our visit until then. But I was anxious to attend the meeting of the Philological Association in New York, and so took advantage of the occasion to come on to Harvard. We went east by the extreme southern route, through California and the Gulf States, returning by the Great Lakes and the northern route, thus traversing the whole circuit of the U. S. I have delayed my report in order to chronicle the advent of Frederic Berrien Dunn, my second child, who was born April 11th, 1901. Dorothy Gertrude is now 4 1-3 years old. I formerly belonged to the United Artisans, a beneficiary order, but withdrew, and now belong to two Secret Societies, neither of them primarily beneficiary,—the Masonic (both Blue Lodge and Chapter) in which I am now J. W.; and the Native Sons of Oregon, Skinner Cabin, No. 5, of which I am charter member, and was for two years Secretary. Then assuming work in the University of Oregon, I organized a Classical Club, on much the same plans as that at Harvard. We have chosen to style the club the 'Societas Quirinalis.' I have had some delightful experiences as a lecturer. My lecture on 'The Acropolis' I have given 8 times, 'Christ or Diana,' also 8 times, 'The Pyramids' twice, 'The Logia of Christ' 4 times, 'Quo Vadis' 3 times, 'Homer's Hades' 3 times, "The Second Fall of Rome' twice, 'The Tower of Babel' twice. I am a member of the American Philological Association. Attended the organization of the Pacific Coast Branch of the Association at San Francisco, during Christmas holidays of '99, reading a paper on 'Juvenal as a Humorist.' Have been interested in religious work both here in the University of Oregon and formerly at Willamette University, where I spent the first 3 years after leaving Harvard. Am now President of the Epworth League of the Methodist Church here. Have a student class of some 50 or more in Sunday School,—a lecture class in Biblical history and higher Criticism. I have been appointed Dean of the university, acting in absence of Prof. Straub, who is now in the East. Am now Chairman of Committee on Entrance to Freshman standing, and have been Chairman of Committee on University Extension. Have accumulated a private library of some 1200 books in the classics. Last summer I was a member of a party of 4 who rode on bicycles from Oregon to Mt. Hood and back, making the ascent of the peak. We were caught in a remarkable electric storm at the top."

Have given two courses of public lectures on birds for the Massachusetts Audubon Society, and have written for Ginn & Co. the text of a book called 'Bird Portraits.'"

HOMER LE ROY HOLCOMB.

"Still hold the same position as in 1897, namely, instructor in Latin and Greek in the Fredonia State Normal School of this State. The summer of 1899, I spent in England and on Continent. On August 20th, 1901, I was married to Grace Loraine Dickerman of Worcester, Mass. She is a graduate of Boston University, class '95. Permanent address, Fredonia, N. Y."

CLARENCE HOYT HOLMES.

"Since April, 1897, I have been in the office of the General Manager of the Associated Press, in Chicago, until May, 1900, and since then in New York. In October, 1898, I married Miss Margaret Larrabee of Chicago. For two or three years I have been studying law 'on the side,' and early this year I was admitted to the New York Bar."

WILLIAM TRUMBULL HOLMES.

"June 23rd, 1897, was ordained to the Gospel ministry in Montclair, N. J., having on the first of that month become Assistant Minister in the Central Congregational Church, Providence, R. I. February 1st, 1901, became pastor of the First Congregational Church of Watertown, Conn., and still hold that position."

WARREN DUSTIN HOLT.

ROBERT HOMANS.

"1897-1898, I was Secretary to Mr. Justice Gray, of the United States Supreme Court. In August, 1898, I went into the law office of John Lowell, in Boston, where I remained for a year. In July, 1899, I formed a partnership for the practice of law with Arthur D. Hill, under the name of Hill & Homans, and this partnership still continues. I am a member of the Common Council of the City of Boston. I am not married, and I do not belong to any scholarly organizations."

RICHARD PERCIVAL HOOD.

"Address: Whitman & Hood, Architects, 62 Devonshire St., Boston."

CHARLES ALBERT HORNE.

HAROLD WELLINGTON HORNE.

"Since the publication of the last report of the class of 1894 I have attended closely to business. I am still with the Metropolitan Water Board, which has recently been consolidated with the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission. Outside of my regular profession I have joined with my brother in the manufacturing of ginger ale and tonics. We make the tonics from spring water at our place in Belmont. The spring is called Trapelo Spring. Have devoted some time to music since graduation, and have recently taken up the French Horn. Am at present President of the Belmont Orchestral Society. In Social Clubs, I am a member of the Belmont Club, the Arlington Golf Club, and the Belmont Tennis Club."

EDWARD TOMPKINS HOUGHTON.

"On February 26th, 1898, entered as junior partner into the law firm of Houghton & Houghton. In the spring of 1900, and in anticipation of the last general election, assisted in the organization of the Monticello Club, composed largely of college graduates who stand for the principles of Jeffersonian Democracy; served as a director for one year. Married in San Francisco, April 3rd, 1900, to Clarisse de Sala Sheldon, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hippolite Dutard. Have a daughter, Elise, born June 23, 1901."

JOHN CORSE HOWARD.

"Started in practise of law for myself (and by myself), September 1st, 1897. Daughter 'Helen,' born October 15, 1901, at Springfield, Mass. In last Class Report 'Edgeworth Country

Club' should have been Edgewater Golf Club.' Have also joined University Club of Chicago, and Country Club of Springfield, Mass.

EDWIN ALLISTON HOWES.

"I am practicing Law at 10 Tremont St., Boston."

JOHN DANA HUBBELL.

"The winter of '97-98 I spent hunting and prospecting in the Southwest. Then I engaged in a cattle trade in Cuba, which has grown to an agricultural supply and cattle business there. With John Heard of '95, I also have a sugar plantation near Havana. Since then I have taken up ranching, and have a small place north of El Paso, in New Mexico and Texas. My time is spent in Cuba and the West, and a great deal on the road between. I was a member of the 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. When war with Spain was declared I was in Scotland with a smashed knee, but went direct from Edinburgh to Santiago, where I arrived two days after the surrender and enlisted, having had difficulties in getting over from Tampa. Came to Montauk Point, L. I., with the regiment. Fever broke out there. Was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, N. Y., and mustered out of army early in October."

HECTOR JAMES HUGHES.

"In the summer of '94, I entered the office of the Chief Engineer of the Town of Brookline, Mass., as a rodman. There I worked until the fall of '97, serving in all the various capacities of such an office. From that place I entered the Engineering Department of the University, as a third year student in civil engineering. In '99 received my degree. During my last year I served as an assistant in Mechanics. Upon the receipt of this degree, a position was offered me in the office of the Chief Engineer of the C. B. & Q. R.R. in Chicago, which I held till March, 1900. Still in the service of that railroad I came to Iowa, where I have been, and am a resident engineer in charge of some of the work which the C. B. & Q. R.R. is doing in making its line a through double track. My headquarters this year will be Corning, Iowa. Was married to Elinor Lambert, April 15, 1902, at Cambridge, Mass."

MAURICE SAMUEL HYMAN.

"Am now engaged in the practice of law, without partners or associates, at 320 Broadway, New York City. The details of a young lawyer's life are sufficiently pathetic and at the same time commonplace to warrant my omitting them from a class report. They are commonplace because shared by so many; the pathos consists of the wearisome waiting for fame and clients. Am still unmarried. Am a member of the Republican, West Side Republican, and Lone Star Boat Clubs, and of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence. Have taken an active interest in politics, and have taken the stump, at each election, for the Republican party. Have still to honor fair Harvard by my deeds, but live in hopes."

CARL DE WITT JACKSON.

"Practising law at Oshkosh, Wis. Member Harvard Club of Milwaukee, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Elected District Attorney for Winnebago County at last election, on Republican Ticket. Chosen Alternate to Republican National Convention at Philadelphia, to represent 6th Congressional district, Wisconsin. Unmarried."

WILLIAM THOMAS JACKSON.

"Professor of Physics in Eureka College, Eureka, Ill."

ARTHUR NEWHALL JOHNSON.

" '94-95, assistant in engraving department, Harvard University. '95-96, instructor in Engineering department, Harvard University. '96-'97, on engineer corps, Calumet and Hecla Mines, Calumet, Mich. '97-'98, third assistant engineer with Massachusetts Highway Commission. '98, Highway Engineer, Maryland Geological Survey, Baltimore, Md. September 12, 1900, married to Miss May L. Ash, of Brooklyn, N. Y. August, 1901, received special appointment as expert in road material testing laboratory, Department of Agriculture, Washington. This latter appointment in addition to duties as Highway Engineer on Maryland Geological Survey."

WALTER SYDNEY JOHNSON.

"Assistant Resident Physician, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston."

SYLVESTER DWIGHT JUDD.

"Ph.D., Georgetown University. Professor Biology, Georgetown University. Assistant Biologist, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Member Biological Society and Entomological Society of Washington; also of Cosmos Club, American Ornithological Union. Married to Helen M. Parkhurst. Publications: 'Relation of American Sparrows to Agriculture,' in Reports of U. S. Department of Agriculture; 'Efficacy of some Protective Adaptations of Insects in securing them from the Attacks of Winds,' in American Naturalist, June, '99."

BENJAMIN CHAUNCEY JUTTEN.

"I am still with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. In October, 1898, I went from Providence, R. I. to St. Louis, Mo., where I had a roving commission over the Mississippi Valley. In May, 1901, I left St. Louis and went into the New York office of my company, at 15 Dey St. Up to the present I have not been mixed up in the political game, and have been neither soldier nor Benedict."

JOSIAH MOSES KAGAN.

"Am still teaching German at the Roxbury High School. Have studied two years at the Graduate School at Harvard. Am a member of two Teachers' Associations."

AARON BENEDICT KEELER. *1900.

Aaron Benedict Keeler died suddenly April 4, 1900, after an illness of only two days. He was born at Ridgefield, Conn., April 13, 1872, and there his boyhood days were spent. In 1877 he began his preparatory course at Williston Seminary, where his work was of a high order. Here at the beginning of his student life was developed what was one of his most noticeable traits, the ability to do a number of things, and do them well. Besides following his studies closely he found time to take part in sports, and was highly popular with his schoolmates. He was elected president of the Adelphi Society, and later president of the school.

In 1890 he entered Harvard, devoting himself mostly to the study of the classics, in the first years of his college course, and preparing himself for his chosen vocation, that of teacher. Of the modern languages French was his choice, and after graduation he made that a specialty. During his freshman year he became a member of the Union, where he was a ready and forceful debater, and later was a leader in numerous other societies. When the Harvard Chapter of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity was revived in June, 1892, he was one of the charter members. Always a good student and hard worker, he did not devote himself exclusively to his studies, but was ever ready to take advantage of the many opportunities offered by the University for development in other lines, believing that his education benefited more in that way than by work in his studies alone. He took his degree in '94, and in the fall began his work at Buffalo, teaching Latin and French. There he remained till 1896, when he went to a school in Boston for one year. During that year he took some graduate work at Harvard. In the fall of 1897 he took charge of the French department of Browning's school in New York, holding that position till the time of his death. The summer of 1898 he spent at the summer school of the University of Paris. He was married May 29, 1897, to Miss Ethel Kestin, daughter of Walter Kestin, of London, England. When he died it was stated in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine that he left one child, but this was an error, his wife alone survives him. Aside from his profession, he was busy with other work. Soon after leaving college he began writing for the quarterly magazine, Current History, later named The Cyclopedic Review of Current History, and a few months before his death was made one of its assistant editors. He contributed a number of both signed and unsigned articles to Puck. In the summer of '99 he gave a series of addresses on French literature, at his old home in Ridgefield, and at the time of his death was at work on a French grammar. Always a close student of politics, on going to New York he was strongly opposed to Tammany, and was a member of the Parkhurst Society.

The loss of Aaron Keeler is one which must come home to nearly every member of the class, and be felt with deep sorrow by those who were fortunate enough to know him intimately. Possessed of a bright, courageous disposition, he had the faculty of making others feel some of the hope and confidence with which he was filled. Perhaps the strongest lesson we can learn from him is that of steadfastness. With steady determination, and compelling energy, he was always advancing to a definite end, and it must ever be a source of deep regret to his classmates that he was not allowed a longer period of life, in which his brilliant qualities of mind should receive their full development.

B. R. A.

WILLIAM GERRY KEENE.

"Am now with the Morley Manufacturing Company of Boston, where I have been for the past three years. On October 7, 1901, married Miss Susan Putnam Newhall, and we are living in Lynn. My business address is 68 Essex St., Boston, Mass."

CARL TILDEN KELLER.

"With the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in Minneapolis, Minn., as Manager. Married Marian Mandell, of Newton, Mass., on January 12, 1898; lived in Minneapolis until September 1, 1898, then went with C. R. I. & P. Ry. at Denver as Freight Solicitor; lived there until December, 1899, when I was appointed Commercial Agent of the C. R. I. & P. Ry., at Colorado Springs. Am interested in Clear Creek Mines (where 'Jim' Underhill, '94 is a successful mining engineer). Must admit that I have been more interested than successful. Have left Colorado to accept position as Superintendent in the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, headquarters in Boston."

GEORGE CASPER KELLOGG.

"Married November 10, 1898, to Miss Grace Vernon Olyphant, of New York, N. Y. One son (only child), born October 7, 1900. Member of firm Dock & Coal Co., Plattsburg, N. Y., and living most contentedly on the shores of Lake Champlain—both winter and summer. Admitted to University Club, New York, in January, 1901."

HARRIS KENNEDY.

"M.D., Harvard, 1898 (cum laude). Assistant in Physiology at the Harvard Medical School for year 1898-99. In September, 1899, became associated with my father in business at 286 Warren St., Roxbury, Mass. Am a member of the University Club and the St. Botolph Club, both of Boston, Mass."

During a visit to the Bahamas, Kennedy made a collection of bats for one of the scientific departments of the government at Washington.

FREDERIC HOUSTON KENT.

"First three years after graduation spent in teaching. Student in Harvard Divinity School, 1897-1899. Ordained in King's Chapel, Boston, June 18th, 1899. Received degree of M.A. (Harvard), 1899. Installed as minister of the Parkside Liberal Society (Unitarian), Buffalo, N. Y., August 30, 1899. Married, August 10th, 1899, Mary Elizabeth Barber of Willimantic, Conn. Daughter, Margaret, born June 24th, 1900. Member of the Liberal Club of Buffalo."

JAMES TRUESDELL KILBRETH.

"Practicing law in New York City."

MELAIM LE NOIR KING.

"Since the publication of the last '94 Class Report, I have been in Cambridge, Mass., tutoring Harvard undergraduates. Last summer (1900), I was one of the teachers of English in the Cuban Summer School. My health is fair; and my income ditto."

RUPERT COCHRANE KING.

"Married June 6, 1901, to Grace Parker Marvin. In July, 1899, bought seat in New York Stock Exchange. Am member of the firm, Tood, Wood & King, 7 Wall St."

JOHN BAYARD KIRKPATRICK.

"Admitted to the New Jersey bar, as an attorney, in February, 1898, and acted as managing clerk for Coult & Howell, until June, 1899. Then became associated with Senator Thomas N. McCarter, Jr., until January 1st, 1901. Opened an office for myself on that date, in the Prudential Building, Newark, N. J. Was admitted as a Counsellor at Law, in February, 1901. Am a member of the Harvard and Reform Clubs in New York, and of the Newark Atheletic Club and New Jersey Historical Society in Newark. Was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Neptune Meter Company at the last annual election."

EDMUND YATES KITTREDGE.

Not heard from.

ROLLA SHERWIN KNAPP.

"I have been abroad most of the time, being away from '96 to 1900. I visited quite a number of those old places in Europe which Dr. Channing used to talk so intelligently about, and saw quite a few cathedrals that interested me greatly, owing to the broad views of art I had imbibed from Prof. C. Eliot Norton. I also visited India, and shot bears in the valley of Cashmere, where in addition, I purchased one or two shawls. These shawls grow there on bushes, and are picked by the natives every spring. On my return I was not shipwrecked and landed safely in Egypt. I went up the Nile about 300 miles, and meditated on the vanity of human greatness, near the tombs of the Pharaohs. Finally I entered the Vienna Medical School, and studied a year there. Now I am in Menomonie, Wis., wondering where I shall be next."

ERIC ALFRED KNUDSEN.

"Since last writing to you, I have abandoned the snows of New England for the balmy breezes of the Paradise of the Pacific, and am now enjoying an open air life in the Island of Kanai, managing a large estate and making myself proficient in the art of the hunter and cowboy. I arrived here in May, 1900, and was nominated by the Republican Party as representative to the Legislature from the Island of Kanai. The natives drew the color line rather sharply, and I was defeated in the November elections, coming in fifth in a field of fourteen. Since then I have devoted my time to my business, though I intend to go into politics again when the next opportunity offers itself."

MAYNARD LADD.

"In June, 1898, I received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Harvard University, and in the following August began an eighteen months' service as house physician in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. During January and February, 1900, I travelled in the South, and in the following May opened an office for the practice of medicine at 483 Beacon St., Boston. During the academic year 1900-1901, and for part of 1902, I held the position as Assistant in Physiological Chemistry and in Diseases in Children in the Harvard Medical School. In April, 1902, was appointed Assistant Physician to the Children's Hospital, and Assistant Physician to the East End Nursery and Infant's Hospital, and resigned position of Assistant in Physiological Chemistry in the Harvard Medical School, retaining the place in the Department of Pediatrics as Assistant in the Diseases of Children. I am also acting assistant to Dr. T. M. Rotch of Boston. It was my purpose to devote myself to the special study and practice relating to infants and children. I have contributed several papers to different medical journals, and one article to an encyclopedia of medicine. I have also done considerable work in connection with the revision of Dr. Rotch's book on Pediatrics. During the past year I have been admitted to various societies and clubs, among which may be mentioned the Massachusetts Medical Society, for the annual meeting of which I was made secretary of the medical section; the Boston Society of Medical Sciences, and the University Club."

HERBERT CONRAD LAKIN.

"Since the publication of the last Class Report I have lived the humdrum life of a law clerk, in the office of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, at present, Evarts, Tracy & Sherman, 52 Wall St., New York City. For more than a year prior to the death of Mr. Beaman, I was his private clerk. I have no political, social or scholarly history."

DANIEL WINN LANE.

"For the past four years I have been engaged in the investment brokerage business with Bingham & Whiting, at 16 State Street, Boston. I am not married and there seems little chance of my following the good example of so many of the good old '94 men. The University Club is the only city club to which I belong. At the recent City election, I was elected a member of the Common Council."

CHARLES LEWIS LAWRENCE.

"I have continued my residence, the past few years, in Los Angeles, Cal., engaged in teaching and tutoring. From July, 1899 to May, 1900,—an interregnum—I was First Reader in First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Los Angeles."

TOWNSEND LAWRENCE.

"Since June, '95, I have been a member of the firm of W. B. Lawrence & Son, 45 Broadway, New York City, Bankers and Brokers. My army record is as follows: With Troop A N. Y. Vol. Cavalry, in Camps Black and Alger, May 2d-July 2d, '98: 1st Lt. 2d U. S. Engineers, A. D. C. to Brig. Gen. O. H. Ernst. Commanded 1st brigade, 1st division, 1st army corps, July 7th, '98. Charleston, S. C., July 7th. Ponce, P. R., July 28th, then up country to Juana Diaz, Coarno (Aug. 9th), Aibonito, and Cayey. Sailed October 11th from Ponce, arrived in New York October 17th. On waiting orders until December 26th. Arrived in Havana, Cuba, January 1st, '99 as A. D. C. to Gen. Ernst, Inspector General for Division of Cuba. Joined my regiment at Camp McKenzie, Augusta, Georgia, May 2d, '99, and mustered out of service with it, May 16, '99, and went back to business."

GEORGE CABOT LEE, Jr.

"I was married November 17th, 1898, to Madeline Jackson. I have two children: George Cabot Lee, 3d, named after my father, born December 10th, 1899; James Jackson Lee, named after my wife's father, born November 22, 1900. I was admitted as junior partner in the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., September 1, 1900."

JAMES GORE KING LEE.

"Am practising law at 20 Nassau St., New York. Still a bachelor."

WILLIAM FRAZAR LEE. *1900.

William Frazar Lee died June 13, 1900, from the effects of an operation for acute appendicitis. He was born August 22, 1872, at Lawrence, Mass., but spent most of his boyhood in the western part of N. Y. State, and was fitted for college at the Fort Hill School, Rochester, N. Y. Before entering college he served one year in an insurance office, and during a second year he taught in the Fort Hill School, yet he was only eighteen years old when he went to Cambridge as a Freshman. There, though he neither sought nor cared for popularity, his warm and sympathetic nature, his light-heartedness, his intellectual independence, his high ideals, and his unfailing good temper quickly won fast friends. He exhibited a deep and somewhat original interest in studious pursuits, but he studied for the love of what he gained rather than to obtain high marks, so that in his class standing—though good—he was not preëminent, in spite of a genuine and rather mature scholarship. He joined the Delta Upsilon fraternity, and in all social gatherings was the centre and life of the party. In dramatic art he had unusual gifts, and was an omnivorous reader of early English plays; his half-serious, half-comical, presentation of female parts in college theatricals will remain as a delightful memory with his friends. In matters of art he was peculiarly talented, so that it was natural for him on leaving college to enter the profession of architecture. In this pursuit he had occasion to spend a winter in the little hill town of South Bristol, N. Y., (where he also passed many summers), and his letters from there abound in humorous and kindly descriptions of the people and their restricted life with suggestions as to starting among them an evening class for study. His interest in that community has since led his parents and friends to found there a free public library as his memorial, and the enterprise has met with such hearty support from his friends and classmates, that a flourishing library now serves as an intellectual centre for the district.

Through the intense suffering of his last illness he showed unfaltering courage, patience, and a never-failing sunniness of disposition.

H. C. W.

ARTHUR LEHMAN.

"My life since leaving college has been a quiet and uneventful one. Immediately after commencement I entered the banking house of Messrs. Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., in this city, with whom I remained for about a year and a half. I accepted a position with my present firm, Lehman Brothers, with whom I have been ever since,—as a partner since September, 1897. I have taken an ordinary part in the social and business life of this city, but have done nothing of particular interest to any one but myself. My engagement has recently been announced, and I expect to be married in the fall."

HUGH LEICHTENTRITT.

"Am at present teacher of musical composition at the Klindworth-Scharwenka Conservatory, one of the great Berlin schools of music. Have been appointed collaborator of the Denkmäler deutscher Tonkunst, an extensive publication issued by the government, and am at present editing for the first time the original manuscripts, works of the earliest German opera composers, Reinhard Keiser (d. 1700). The first volume is ready for print and about to appear in short time. Intend to obtain degree of Dr. of Philosophy from the University of Berlin this summer. Published musical criticisms in the German Times, an English newspaper appearing in Berlin. Am busy with original musical compositions of all kinds of which nothing, however, has been printed so far."

OTTO AUGUSTUS LEMKE.

"Since the issue of the last Class Report, I have lived quietly and peacefully attending to my daily affairs, and cannot boast of having done anything worth mentioning. I am studying law at present in the University of Wisconsin, expect to graduate in June and practise in Milwaukee."

ALEXANDER VON WOLFFERSDORFF LESLIE.

"Married, November 10th, 1896, to Josephine Crosby Mason, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Children: Louise Josephine, born December 27, 1897; John Ronald, Jr., born March 19, 1900. Have taught several years in the West. At present First Assistant in High School at Newark, N. J. Have had a two years' graduate course at Columbia University, where I was Fellow in Literature, degree of A.M. Publications: 'Was Swift Married to Stella? a Discussion,' Anglia, Halle, September, 1897. 'The Scope of College English,'—paper read before the College Section of the Minnesota Educational Association, December 27, 1899."

BERTRAM FRENCH LINFIELD.

"On July 8th, 1898, I was married to Miss Ethel N. Browne of Newport, N. H. The following day Mrs. Linfield and I sailed from New York for Rotterdam, where we arrived after an unusually pleasant voyage. Our travels took us through Holland, Germany, France and England. A month in Paris and a week in London brought us to the end of a very interesting and profitable summer.

On the return voyage we encountered a severe storm, which was worth much as a bit of experience never to be forgotten.

Late in September, I resumed my duties as teacher at Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass., where I have spent five years of the seven since '94.

The last two years I have been teaching Science in Yale territory, at Naugatuck, Conn. My attempts to plant a crimson banner here have not been in vain. Next year I hope to send at least two young men to Harvard."

HENRY RICHARDSON LINVILLE.

"Since 1897, I have been engaged in teaching biology in the Delbitt Clinton High School of New York City. I am a member of the Harvard Club and also of the New York Academy of Sciences."

THOMAS LEONARD LIVERMORE, JR.

"Formerly in the Boston & Albany Freight Dept. Since February, 1900, in the gold and silver mining business at Smuggler, Colorado, having leased a portion of the Smuggler Union Mine."

JOHN DANIEL LOGAN.

"I am at present, and have been since 1899, Professor of English and of Philosophy at the State University of South Dakota. Have done considerable publishing since my first report. The names of most of the publications, I have forgotten, and am too lazy to look them up. But since , as Aristotle says, 'fathers and authors are immensely proud of their own productions,' I mention that in the Atlantic for May, 1901, I had an article on 'American Prose Style,' and have published a book entitled, 'The Structural Principles of Style.' I mention only these two, in deference to Aristotle. My family is not large; I have one little girl—Vivien Shephard—born January 5th, 1900, at Vermillion, S. D."

ELI LONG, JR.

"Am practising medicine, and live at 59 W. 97th St., New York City."

SAMUEL HENRY LONGLEY.

"I am monotonously plugging away at the bar here, with a hope that I may know some law in the distant future. There is nothing illustrious or famous about the matter."

JAMES EDWIN LOUGH.

"Married, June 27, 1900, Dora Albonetta Bailey. Professor of Psychology in State Normal School, Oshkosh, Wis., '98-'01. Now Professor of Experimental Psychology in School of Pedagogy, New York University. Member of American Psychological Association. Fellow of American Association for Advancement of Science. Address, School of Pedagogy, Washington Square, East, New York City."

FREEMAN LAMPREY LOWELL.

"Harvard Medical School, M.D., 1900. Cambridge Hospital, house physician, July, 1900 to July, 1901. Bacteriologist, Somerville Board of Health, April 1, 1901. Opened office at 50 College Ave., West Somerville, November, 1901. Member of Massachusetts Medical Society, Somerville Medical Society, and Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health."

JAMES BURNETT LOWELL.

"Married, April 10, 1899, to Miss Harriet Worden of New York. Left for So. America with her in May, 1899, as Manager of gold mining company. Returned March 1st, 1900, having resigned my position on account of sickness of self and wife in So. America. Joined the Stock Exchange firm of Worden & Co., March 5th, 1900, as partner. No children. Present address, 3 Broad St., New York City."

MARSHALL NEWELL. *1897.

It is more than four years ago, since, on Christmas day, 1897, our class was shocked by the news of the sudden and tragic death of Marshall Newell. At that time, no other man meant so much to his class-mates as did he, who, coming among us in his freshman year unknown, in one short term became the foremost man of us all. He was, in the first year of our course, pushed into a position of prominence such as no other member of our class attained, and that position, which at first he held by athletic prowess, soon was his by right of character.

His early life seems to have been the ordinary life of a strong, healthy boy, brought up close to nature. The first few years of his life were lived in Clifton, N. J., where he was born, but when Newell was eleven, his family moved to Great Barrington, Mass., and until he left to prepare for college at Exeter, he lived on the farm there. Unquestionably, it was from this close communion with nature and the simplicity of the home life, that Newell drew the truth and singleness of character that made him what he was to us. Naturally, too, the open, healthy country life gave him the physical strength and stamina that made him able to do what he did in Harvard athletics. Those of the class who were in Exeter with him, know better than the rest of us how he worked there to prepare himself for the college life and training, which we all went through together. We all of us know what he was in Cambridge.

Newell attained his athletic position early, but not because of that does he endure in our minds, has he become such a living personality in the class today. Where had we in all the class, such a true man? It was because of this inherent truth and straightforwardness, this being "true to type," as he has been described, and that type the best, that we honored and loved him as we did. Who of us does not remember that sturdy personality, that steady, truthful look that seemed to make impossible the least falseness or pretense. Granted that his strength was great, and that by it he won the admiration of us all, yet that alone could not have won him the unique position in the class that he finally came to hold, nor impressed his life amongst us upon our thoughts, nor yet made his loss the personal one it has been felt by the entire class.

One of our Harvard graduates, who has attained the highest position in the power of his countrymen to give—Theodore Roosevelt—has said,—"It is a good thing to have a sound body, and a better thing to have a sane mind, but it is better still to have that aggregate of virile and decent qualities which we group together under the name of character,"—and surely in this we have reason for Marshall Newell's prominence as the best known and best loved man in our class. Can we look back from this distance of eight years after graduation upon our course in college, and not see and feel the impress of his character upon it? We had no time then, we had no inclination to analyze that influence, because it was with us and accessible to all. How accessible, let not those testify whose pursuits and work ran parallel to his, but those who met him and were impressed by his personality in spite of differing aims and ideals. Where got he that breadth and depth of truth that welled up to us, all unconscious that we were, and drew from us the best we had, leaving us with freshened spirits, and feeling that straight living was more worth while? Where, but in the absolute truth of his character, the truth that made affectation and mannerisms impossible to him, and out of place in others when with him. And so he stood for the great thing for which the University has stood, the great spirit that must run in all of us in '94, who would be worthy of the class, that "Veritas" which we rubbed up against for four years, often with no appreciation of its meaning, and which time has shown us will obtain and prove itself again and yet again.

It was not until after Marshall Newell's death that we found some expression of his inner life in a diary which he began the year after graduation. There are recorded the doings of a simple life with here and there the outcroppings of a mind that was as true in its course as the needle to the pole. His great love of nature, his enjoyment of her manifestations and moods, make the passages relating to nature the key to much of the sweetness of his character; and his joy in action and free movement, in the changing of the seasons, bring clearly to us the man in his grand physical cleanliness. That we mourn him more than others because of what we knew in him, and what he left behind, means nothing in derogation of those other members of our class who have been lost to us in college and since. The test of time is on all alike, and as he wrote in his college life, "Magna est veritas et praevalebit."

On that Christmas Eve of '97, three years after we separated on our several ways, our class of '94 lost a simple, noble life from its numbers; but gained a great and true memory. We have perhaps had time to appreciate how, in the cares and responsibilities of every day life, his influence might have been weakened by separation, and been somewhat lost in the other issues of our lives. We now at least have his memory ever fresh amongst us, his influence ever strongly with us when we meet, and thus has his truth obtained, his character proved itself again. Let us cherish that memory as we cherish all the pleasant, happy, goodly things of our four years together, and let us keep his influence strong in the class and have it at our anniversaries, clear and pure as the mountain streams of nature he delighted in, strong and brave as was his own personality.

"In 1898, I received the degree of Ph.D. from Harvard. The title of my thesis was: 'Dryden as Critic, with Special Reference to the French Influence.' I was then awarded a 'John Harvard Fellowship,' for the study of Slavic Languages, which was renewed in the following year. During 1898-1900, I lived in Russia, mainly at St. Petersburg, where I attended the University, and took private lessons of students. I was a member of one club, an association of young Slavanophiles, for the most part students. In the spring of 1899, I had an excellent opportunity of watching the university disorders, which were of a semi-political character, and was present at many of the students' meetings. During 1900-01, I held a temporary position as Assistant Professor of English at the University of Wisconsin, where I supplied the place of a professor abroad on leave of absence. In 1901, I was appointed Instructor in English and Russian at the University of California (Berkeley, Cal.), and in 1902, Assistant Professor."

GEORGE OENSLAGER.

"Since leaving the Harvard Graduate School in 1896, I have been employed as chemist at the paper mills of S. D. Warren & Co., at Cumberland Mills, Me. This last summer I travelled in Europe, seeing most of the great cities. I returned more satisfied than ever with being an American."

MAURICE OSTHEIMER.

"In November, 1897, I was appointed Resident Physician to St. Joseph's Hospital. In December, I read two papers before the Pathological Society, 'Sections of Two Tumors Containing Basophile Cells,' and 'A Case of Gangrenous Carcinoma of the Stomach,' both of which were published later, in the Proceedings of the Pathological Society. In June, 1898, leaving St. Joseph's Hospital, I accepted the position of Resident Physician to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children. Here I remained until my departure for Europe in December. 19 months I spent abroad: 7 months in Vienna, at work under Widerhofer, Monti, Albrecht, Kovács, etc.; 5 months in Paris, under Moizard, Marfan, Comby, etc.; one month in London with Garrod; and one month in Berlin, with Oppenheim, Heubner, Baginsky, etc. The four remaining months passed rapidly in travelling. Austria, Hungary, Holland and Belgium I visited most thoroughly. France, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland, England, Italy, and Bosnia, I saw well. And I saw something of Servia, Herzegovina, Roumania, Montenegro and Spain. I visited a great number of Universities and Hospitals. In June, 1900, I came back to Philadelphia, and opened an office at 225 South 20th St. I translated an article by Grawitz upon 'Granular Degeneration in the Erythrocytes,' which appeared in the American Journal of the Medical Sciences in September. In October, I read a paper before the Pediatric Society, upon 'Fatal Intestinal Hemorrhage Without Known Cause in an Infant of Five Months,' published in the Archives of Pediatrics for Decem-ler. I was appointed Substitute Instructor in Clinical Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania for the term 1900-1901. I was also appointed Physician-in-Chief to the Children's Dispensary of the University Hospital; and in January, 1901, Dispensary Physician to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children. I translated Kitasato's 'Report upon the Recent Pest-Epidemic in Kobe and Osaka,' which appeared in the Philadelphia Medical Journal in February, 1901. On April 1st, I became an Assistant Editor of the Philadelphia Medical Journal. I am now a member of the University Club, Harvard Club, Philadelphia Pediatric Society, Philadelphia Pathological Society, University of Pennsylvania Medical Society, William Penn Charter School Alumni Association."

"Since Report No. II, have lived in Little Compton, R. I., during the summers, where I have been member of the Town Council two years. Was Cycle Path Commissioner there two years, and built several more miles of side paths. Am still Local Consul for the L. A. W. Have been Treasurer of the Seaconnet Golf Club three years. On December 28, 1899, sailed from Boston to Liverpool, passed quickly through England to Avignon in Southern France. Toured on my cycle through Nimes, Arles and Marsailles to Cannes, Nice and Monte Carlo, arriving in time for the carnival along the Riviera. Found Southern France famous for its wines, good roads and inns. Leaving Mentone rode by San Remo to Genoa, and as far south as Cararra, returning northward over the Appenines and valley of the Po nearly to the St. Gothard tunnel, where my wheel was stuck in the snow. Found the wines of Italy as good as those of France. The roads, however, varied greatly, those at Genoa being so bad as to have caused Columbus to leave for America in the hopes of better wheeling, a fact not generally known to historians. Cycled through Lucerne and Zurich to the famous falls of the Rhine, and then down the Rhine to Cologne. Spent April and May in Southern England. Found it useful to have ticket of Cycle Touring Club, both on account of Custom Houses and Hotel Lists. Sailed January, 1901, from New York to Savannah; nearly wrecked off Hatteras. Went from Savannah to Jacksonville, thence to Tampa and St. Petersburg. I spent a month sailing in Tampa Bay, returning in March to Daytona and Ormond, near the East Coast of Florida, famous for their good roads and live oaks. Came north by St. Augustine, Charlston, Richmond and Washington. Most of the Southern cities have some good shell and asphalt roads, but the country roads are often hopelessly sandy."

"Since my graduation from the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, in '97, I have continued as Assistant Minister to the Rev. John Cotton Brooks, at Christ Church, Springfield, Mass. I have had opportunities to go to New York City and to Rhode Island, but have preferred to remain in Massachusetts. Among the first to welcome me here at Springfield was Marshall Newell. Only a few days before his death we dined together, and he seemed well and in good spirits, although he had been ill some few weeks before. His death, so sudden and sad, happened on Christmas Eve, in '97. On that evening 'Ma' was to attend one of the Assemblies there, and he was evidently hastening to be on time, for he came into the city later than usual, and in order to make a short cut to his office, he got off the engine on which he was returning to the city, before it had reached the station, when an outgoing train caused his instant death.

On the Monday following Christmas I officiated at his funeral. Mr. Chester W. Bliss of '83, an intimate friend of Newell's, while he was at Springfield, arranged for a special car, and we left here for Boston on the early train. At Boston many Harvard men met the train and attended the services, which were held at his uncle's home in West Newbury, near Newburyport. After reading of the Episcopal burial service at the house, and a poem which I was requested to read, Longfellow's 'Psalm of Life,' which Ma used to repeat time and again, we were driven to a small country graveyard some two miles from his uncle's house. It was a beautiful spot where we left him, in a rising bit of ground covered with trees back from a country road, away from the city and town, in the quiet and stillness of the woods, which we know from the thoughts of his diary, he loved so well. Here '94, and not '94 alone, but men from many classes stood and paid their last tribute to him whom, we know we cannot claim for ourselves alone: for he was one of the noblest and highest expressions of our college life, and all Harvard reveres him as well."

CHARLES WARNER SHOPE. *1902.

Charles Warner Shope was born August 14, 1871, and in 1883 went to St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H., where he fitted for Harvard. His record there was extraordinary for scholarship. He was awarded a prize every year that he was there, and at the end of his seventh year, and before entering Harvard, he received the "School Medal,"—the highest honor granted at St. Paul's School.

He was editor and a very large contributor to the school paper, the Horae Scholasticae.

He entered Harvard College with the class of '94, with even honors on his admittance examinations. During his sophomore year he was taken on to the Harvard Advocate as a direct result of continuous acceptable contributions, and thereafter, during his college course, he was both in a literary way, and in hard work for the paper its main-stay, and during his junior year, and a large portion of his senior year, it was due to his unremitting and untiring efforts that the Advocate bridged over that period of its existence.

Shope graduated with the class of '94, and went immediately to New York, where he was admitted to the famous banking house of Brown Brothers, in which he remained for four years.

In 1897, he married Miss Ione W. Sutton Pickhardt, the only daughter of Wilhelm Pickhardt, the famous merchant. Two children, both sons, blessed this marriage. The eldest, William Krebs Beresford, was born June 22, 1898. The second son, Henry Bedford Sutton, was born April 26, 1901.

On leaving Brown Brothers in 1898, he became associated with the well known mercantile firm of C. H. Arnold & Company, of New York City, and on the first day of July, 1898, he was admitted to partnership.

Charles Warner Shope died in New York City, after a brief illness, on the 10th day of January, 1902, and is survived by his widow and sons.

Shope came of a famous old Southern family, which has numbered amongst its members men high in jurisprudence and in the professions from the earliest colonial times. He spent his early life in New York City, and made many warm friendships, which increased in strength with the passage of years, for one of his most remarkable characteristics was his devoted loyalty to his friends. He was an indefatigable worker, and kept always before him high ideals to which he was ever faithful.

Combined with unusual strength of character, he was possessed of extraordinary tenderness and sympathy, so that to those who knew him intimately, his death was an irreparable loss.

"After receiving degree from Harvard Law School in 1897, I removed from Frankfort, Ky., to St. Louis, Mo., and entered the law offices of Messrs. Seddon & Blair, Union Trust Building.

At the outbreak of the war with Spain, I enlisted as a private in the St. Louis Light Battery, Missouri Volunteers, and served through the Porto Rican campaign under General Brooke. After being mustered out I returned to the practice of law. In June, 1900, was elected Lieutenant of the first volunteer company of Sheriff's Posse, organized to suppress the riots and disorders growing out of the St. Louis street car strike. Later, was made Captain and Assistant Inspector General for the purpose of collecting evidence to be used in defense of the sheriffs on charges arising from frequent conflicts with the lawless element. Was appointed attorney for the Citizens' Committee of Public Safety, instituted to prosecute all cases of assaults on innocent persons during the strike, and secured 39 convictions.

In the Presidential campaign of 1900, canvassed the western counties of Missouri under the auspices of the State Republican Committee. Likewise spoke in the interests of the Republican candidates in the municipal contests of April, 1901. Have contributed numerous articles to the newspapers on matters relating to the World's Fair of 1903 in St. Louis, the Street Car Strike, a Juvenile Probation Law for Missouri (enacted at the last session), and other subjects. "May, '97 to May, '98, private practice in Boston, Member Harvard Medical Alumni Association, Fellow Massachusetts

Medical Society, Member Boston Society of Medical Sciences, District Physician Boston Dispensary. Published 'Cerebral Syphilis, with Report of a Case of Chronic Meningo-Encephalitis Secondary to Syphilis,' Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, December 30, 1897; 'The Tuberculin Reaction in Man,' Journal of the Boston Society of Medical Science, 1898; 'Lectures on Fever Nursing,' Trained Nurse, 1899. May 12, to September 15, 1898, Assistant Surgeon (volunteer), U. S. Navy. Present during the fighting at Guantanamo and Caimanera, Cuba, in June. October 14, '98, to March 31, '99, First Lieut. and Assistant Surgeon, Fifth Mass. Infantry, U. S. V. After serving three weeks with my regiment at Camp Meade, Penn., was detached and sent to Camp Wetherill, Greenville, S. C., in command of a detachment of the Hospital Corps, U. S. Army, to prepare the Second Division Hospital, Second Army Corps, for the arrival of patients at the transfer of the troops from Camp Meade to the winter camps in the South. On the arrival of my regiment at Camp Wetherill, did not rejoin, but continued on duty at the Division Hospital until the muster-out of my regiment, March 31, '99. April 1, 1899, to the present date, March, 1901, A.A. Surgeon, U. S. Army till July 12, '99, at Camp of Recruits and Casuals at the Presidio of San Francisco. July 12 to August 12, '99, en route to the Philippine Islands via Honolulu. August to November, on duty at the Second Reserve Hospital in Manila. November 6 to December 15, on Lawton's Campaign in Northern Luzon, nominally attached to the Fourth Cavalry, but travelling most of this time with Division Headquarters, and placed under the immediate orders of the Chief Surgeon of the Division. Went through San Fernando, Mexico, Santa Ana, Aráyat, San Vicente, Cabiao (at the edge of the Candava Swamp—worst roads in existence), San Isidro Santa Rosa, Cabanatuán, Talavera (Thanksgiving dinner of bacon, canned salmon, hard tack and coffee), Hacienda del Valle, San José, return to San Isidro, and from there to San Miguel de Mayumo in Bulacán Province.

December 13, 1899 to January 23, 1900, stationed at Field Hospital, San Miguel de Mayumo. Then via Baliuag to Calumpit. January 23 to February 7, 1900, stationed with a battalion Third Infantry at Calumpit, with substations at Apalit and Santo Tomás. February 7, till the end of May, with the same battalion at Hagonoy, in the delta region of the Rio Grande de Pampanga.

I converse in Spanish with some fluency. At San Miguel, and particularly at Hagonoy, I had unusual opportunities for the study of the customs, character and political opinions of the Filipinos. During Holy Week, through special effort and at some risk, I was fortunate enough to see many flagellants or 'penitentes.' The only reference I have found to flagellants in the Philippines is a line in Foreman's book, written from hearsay. Of the very prevalent custom of circumcision among the Filipinos, I have seen no mention in any book. June 1 to July 1, 1900, en route from Manila to San Francisco, via Nagasaki, Japan. During the stay of the transport at Nagasaki, took a 'ricksha' trip to Mogi. For the last eight months, stationed at Fort Monroe, Va., with the exception of a month's temporary duty at Egmont Key, Fla."

In October, 1897, I joined Squadron A, New York National Guard, and early in May of 1898, went to Camp Black with the quota from that squadron sent to enlist in the United States Volunteers. In the latter part of May, 1898, I received a commission as Captain and Assistant Quartermaster, U. S. Volunteers, and was ordered to Chickamauga Park, Ga., where I was ordered to report to General James H. Wilson, commanding the First Division of the First Army Corps. I served on the staff of General Wilson as Acting Chief Quartermaster of the First Division of the First Army Corps, until I received a sick leave of absence on October 15, 1898. On November 30, 1898, I was honorably discharged from the service. On November 14, 1900, I was married to Miss Isabella Goodrich, of Akron, Ohio."

"Residence, at present, 133 W. 122nd St., New York City, where I am continuing as a specialist in eye, ear, nose and throat diseases. I have been and am still Instructor on the Eye in the New York Postgraduate Medical School and Hospital; also Assistant Surgeon in the New York, Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital; also on the visiting corps of the Harlem Dispensary. In addition, I am consulting physician to the White Plains Hospital, White Plains, N. Y., on my specialties. Married, October 26th, 1897, Miss Mildred Ludeman, of New York, and have had two children, Margaret, born September 19, '98, died December 21st, '98 of grippe-pneumonia; George, born February 9th, '01 and still living, thanks to Divine Providence. My son George named after my grandfather, the late ex-mayor of New York, and of civil war fame, is the fifth in line, and a typical Opdyke of the good old Holland stock. My main reason for making the Eye my life work has been to help alleviate the sufferings of my fellowmen in this line, and to save them the misfortune and trials I myself have endured while my own eyes have been poor, and for which reason I could not finish my course with my class at dear old Harvard."

SAMUEL MEEKER SULLIVAN.

"Member Lotus Club, Denver, Colorado, up to breaking out of Spanish-American War. In April, 1898, was ordered from office Chief Commissary, Department of the Colorado, Denver, Col., to Atlanta, Ga., to Chief Commissary's office, Department of the Gulf, where I remained throughout the war, and up to September, 1899, when I was sent to the Philippines. On arrival there was assigned with Chief Commissary, First Division, Eighth Army Corps, to staff of Major General Lawton, who was then in the field at Tayug, Luzon, and later I reported at Division Headquarters, Paco. In January, 1900, was ordered to Chief Commissary's office, Department of the Pacific, and Eighth Army Corps, (subsequently the Division of the Philippines), Manila. There I stayed until July of that year, when I was ordered to Taku, China, with Chief Commissary, U. S. Forces. Went from Taku to Tien-sin; from wall around latter place witnessed battle between 6th U. S. Cavalry and Boxers. In September, 1900, returned to United States, and was stationed in Purchasing Commissary, San Francisco, Cal., until November, when I was ordered to office Chief Commissary, Department of the East, New York, N. Y."

TRIENNIAL DINNER

The Second Triennial Dinner of the Class, was held at the Exchange Club, Boston, June 26 1900, the night before Commencement. About 125 men were present, including several from far distant points, the record for the distance being held by a member who came all the way from Colorado. Music was supplied by two organizations, one vocal and one instrumental, and there was no lack of enthusiasm. Lincoln Davis, Chairman of the Class Committee, presided, and F. F. Dresser was toastmaster.

A touch of sadness was given the dinner by the mention of Marshall Newell's name, and the remarks which followed. After a silent toast had been proposed to Newell, Waters spoke feelingly of him, and of the loss that the Class sustains in his death. Other speeches were made by L. Davis and G. C. Lee. S. M. Williams spoke of the graduate races arranged for Commencement Day, C. T. Bond spoke for the ladies, E. B. Bishop for law, H. Cabot for medicine, and J. D. Hubbell for Cuba, introducing four Cuban singers. The poem, which follows, was read by H. C. Greene. Congratulations were telegraphed to the captain of the nine, and delegations sent to '80 and '97. All who remembered the dinner pronounced it a great success.

VERSES FOR THE SECOND TRIENNIAL DINNER OF THE CLASS OF 1894

Mr. President,
I rise obedient
To your behest.
But friends, with never a jest
Nor yet with music of sweet words
May I regale your ears.
Mirth dies in thinking on the years
That die:
And I
Have not the gift of birds,
Angels and poets even more divine
To wind about with melody,
As with a vine,
That gnarled young tree
Of tragi-comedy,
Your growing life.
Still let me dimly phrase
Your rugged ways
That climb aloft through strife
Toward peace:
And as I cease,
Surely your strength shall shine
With its own ample glory.

Friends, while of memory I quaff the wine,
Lo joy and mingled bitterness are mine,
Joy and the taste of tears!
For in the surging years
Your story,
Lit up and broken by a lightning-flash
And rent through all its thunder by the clash

And martial clang of steel, your story rings
Triumphant with a trumpet-call that sings
Divinely fierce. Yet while on golden wings
Victory cleaves the clouds, a muffled sound
Of drums that throb brings gladness to the ground.
Sorrow and questioning hold our hearts bound;
Helpless we hear the rolling note of death;
We watch while fitfully it breathes a breath,
And the grass withereth, as the Book saith,
And suddenly a flower fadeth.

Friends,
Thus ever and anon a clear life ends.
Beebe is gone, and Benedict and Shea:
Whitney, McClure and Smith have found the way
For Small and Coolidge in their latter day:
These ten years past, Shaw vanished from our world:
Now three years gone, Newell's great soul was whirled—
Ah whither, through the snow that round him swirled?

A trusty comrade, simple, strong and true,
    True to himself in battles won and lost,
    Sinple in honor as in fortune's frost,
Through life, great righteous life was his to hew
A rough fate smooth; and though chance madly slew
    Him, him of all men, whom men loved the most,
    Still on that Christmas eve a heavenly host
Sang to him tidings of great joy, his due.

Classmates, may all our dead know his soul's peace.
And for the living, shall not they increase
In joy and gladness? Yea. And yet thro' strife!
To fight; while baseness in the world is rife,
Keenly at home to ply the surgeon's knife,

To bear afar the liberating sword
Till the most rich of tropics can afford

No food for antique tyranny: to fight
Thus well, is and has been your grave delight.
As righteous fighting was an ample joy
To call from Harvard two score years ago
Each youth whose gallantry, each man and boy
Whose strength, the Nation craved; so—truly so—
Whate'er the viper-tongue of fools may hiss,
So, when the Nation drew God's sword on Spain,
Not "mere bravado," but the battle-bliss
That helps the helpless came on earth again.
It thrilled from West to East till the warm heart
Men think so cold, the heart of Harvard, lept.
Student and graduate left yard and mart:
Among our elders Wood and Roosevelt kept
Troth with their souls. And that the Cuban Star
Might see the spirit of our Crimson flag,
From Ninety-four heroes went out to war—
Yea men that do while carpers fret and nag—
Men in whose soul the Fathers' truth survives
So strong that they could offer up their lives
As simply to the Nation as a lover
Offers sweet wild-flower to the flower-like girl
He loves.

Glad still, beneath the fatal cover
Of their own rifle-smoke, calm in the whirl,
Cool in the fire, of fight, they sought their foe,
Sowing, through a dense jungle, row by row,
The seed of Death. Yet o'er them in the fray
Fate smiled; and tho' to Siboney
Cosby walked weakened by a wound that bathed

His side with blood, Hubbell unscathed
Saw victory crown glowing victory.
Men too whose diverse destiny
Led them to pitch their metaphoric tents
With other tentless regiments
Came forth from war with body whole
And hell-steeled soul:
Glidden and Norman learnt what shell
And shot may tell;
Lawrence for whom the Protocol
Hushed screaming ball
And trumpet call;
Weitzel whose Porto-Rican sport
Was all too short;—
These also knew war's trial
And shared in part the long denial
That fettered Bond beneath the Tampa pines
And cooped up Bordman with the idle lines
That held South Framingham and old Fort Warren.
Then though the services of these seemed barren,
Surely their honor is no whit less great
Than theirs to whom a fiercer-kindly fate
Gave opportunity and swift reward.
To these and Barney who supports the sword
We still must wield in the far Philippines,
To these and all through whom our honor means
More than mere words, to all, all praise,
For all, a cheer!

Classmates of Ninety-four,
Think not I laud alone your deeds in war.
The deeds of Davis, Ladd, Hugh Cabot, May,
The deeds of all our doctors as they stay
The gaunt, elusive fingers of disease—

These also glow with life. The men that ease
Our ample days, the steady gathering bees
In hives of business—surely no less
Do they deserve your praises to crown success.
And shall not those who, while we tarry
Mere gallant bachelors, still marry,
And rear, perchance, a lass to bless
The coming day with fruitfulness,
Shall not all those—among them Lee,
Cutler and Paine—shall these not see
A smile of envious applause?
Then, too, the men whose ever arid way
Leads through the dust of desert laws—
Dry dust in spite of Waters—shall not they,
Whose skill alone may set us free
From the sharp tiger claws
Of ice-clad Tammany—
Shall these, the saviors of our sullied name,
Shall these not reap from friendship praise and fame?

And last the men of engineering art
And those that choose the subtler part
Of nourishing the Nation's heart
With music drawn to earth from heaven
And knowledge leavened with the leaven
Of joy and strength—shall Frothingham,
The man of engine, sluice and dam:
And that weird youth of chord and trill
The absent-minded E. B. Hill;
Sidis; and Stone the man of books
That line the bookworms choicest nooks;
And Sedgewick, author of "Tom Paine,"
A title that the plashing rain
Of Time shall beat against in vain;

Eddy, and Oliver, and Rand
Whose ship of Latin lore is manned
With laughing thoughts from many a land
Of modern time—shall they not all,
Who ever hear Life's clarion-call
And ever do Life's clear behest,
Shall they not all be doubly blest
In hearing now your surging cheers
In waves of gladness drown the years
That are not, and in waves of strength
Bear forth their spirit toward the years to come?

Classmates, perchance at somewhat dreary length
I have rehearsed, in part, your growing sum
Of deeds that shine: and yet a word remains.
Faint rumor and a murm'ring that draws near,
A murmur against crime, a tale of stains,
A word that fills the heart with echoing fear—
These, if their soul be truth,
These shall turn joy to ruth,
Making the Nation's name
And each man's separate fame
A shameful and a flickering flame.
Yea, if this fear be fact,
If Liberty be racked
And tortured by us in the isles afar
Then is our joy but dust,
Our national life mere lust
To seize and conquer, main, and foully mar.
Yea, if this word be true
Then ruth and utter rue
Shall make our life a sharp and biting pain,
A thing of faith undone,
Of olden hope, hard-won,
Now dead unless the Nation turn again.

But classmates, is it thus?
Must it fly over us,
This flag of sack-cloth stained with dust and ashes?
Doom's thunder crashes,
Its lightning flashes
Not yet, not yet for us!

Still strong the spirit thrives
For which our fathers' fathers gave their lives.
And so must all of you acknowledge;
For this I know of mine own knowledge:
This have I seen:—
Where is no grass nor green,
Where desert alkali
Stretches beneath a sky
Of hot and blinding sheen,
In Arizona wastes:
On Texas range and glad Pacific slope;
In Colorado, where the miner tastes,
Amid the mountain snows, despair and hope;
In Iowa, upon the endless plains;
In Florida, where tropic heat and rains
Make men more sallow than their flowers are gay;
In dense New York; among New Hampshire's gray
Old rocks; and here by Massachusetts bay—
In all this huge diversity,
From sea to lashing sea,
Here polished, there still rough, men are the same,
Kind, just, and proud to bear the name,
American!

Yet friends,
For every man,
For every man at last, the old day ends.

For Uncle Sam the day is also dead
For living the soft life that he has led.
Yea friends,
The old day ends,
Ends now in purple and in glory,
Purple for mourning,
Gold for the brave story
Of battles won
Through great deeds done
These hundred years and more.
Comrades of Ninety-four,
The old day ends;
And bleak with warning
Yet golden and heroic still
A new day dawns.
Friends, where thick darkness is, by us it shall be lighted;
And where wrong lingers, there shall wrong be righted.
We are not pawns,
Our life is what we will!

Classmates, in this the great world-brotherhood,
Despite the past, all help and hinder all;
Then though we stand where none before have stood,
Yea, though the Fathers' single clarion-call
Sound faint and far and dim; still let us spring
Gladly to action, making every deed
Worthy the high, sweet memories that cling
To all our dead. Not through a piping reed
Let their praise sound, but in a battle-charge,
Taking the bulwarks of the realm of Night.
And while forever wide and strong and large
Glows the glad radiance of our realm of Right,
Let us rejoice if stained be the sod
With blood of ours for Liberty and God!

H. C. Greene.

CLASS FUND

June 6th, 1902.

The Class Committee presents below statements showing the the condition of the Class Fund. In the main the figures speak for themselves, but there are a few points which are not suggested by a hasty examination of the tables. The Committee wishes briefly to call attention to these points, in the hope that the delinquent contributors to the fund, and those who have not subscribed may be induced to give the matter attention.

It will doubtless surprise the Class to know that about eighty-five of the two hundred and eighty subscribers to the Fund, or about thirty per cent, are still in arrears in their payments. The loss of interest on these overdue accounts is about $250.00. Of those whose accounts have been in arrears when paid, only two have paid the interest due. Certainly there has been no lack of earnest and persistent dunning on the part of the Treasurer, and this very large percentage of overdue accounts cannot be attributable to anything but indifference or carelessness.

Will every man who reads this report and whose subscription is either overdue or not yet made, please send in his subscription, large or small, to H. A. CUTLER, 217 South St., Baltimore, Md?

It will be noticed that the one item of printing has been more than enough to use up the entire interest earnings of the Fund. The other expenses have of necessity been paid out of the principal. It is easy to see where this policy will end, if both principal and interest are not rapidly increased.

Up to within a month, the Fund has been deposited in various savings banks, earning about four per cent interest. Within a month, the Committee has bought three bonds, which will net four and five per cent interest. It is hoped that these bonds can be sold advantageously, so that from this time the class may have two sources of revenue, interest and profit on sales. Another bond will be bought shortly, and the balance of the available cash used to pay for this report and the 1902 Commencement spread.

The Committee desires to acknowledge the valuable suggestions of Mr. G. C. Lee, Jr., as to investments.

Inquiries in regard to the Fund will be gladly answered by the Treasurer.

Lincoln Davis,
Geo. A. Gray,
H. A. Cutler,
Class Committee.
